PROJECT INFORMATION

They Had Names is an award-winning digital humanities project dedicated to uncovering, preserving, and sharing information about the lives of enslaved and formerly enslaved people in coastal Georgia Liberty and Bryan Counties.

Drawing on probate records, court cases, deeds, church records, and other archival sources, the project makes these histories accessible through searchable abstracts and transcriptions, indexes, and interpretive essays.

By using digital tools to recover individual names and stories, They Had Names bridges archival research and public history, ensuring that voices often omitted from the historical record are visible to descendants, researchers, and the wider community.

Whether you're a descendant searching for family connections or a historian studying this community, They Had Names provides the tools to piece together lives that might otherwise remain hidden. Every name tells a story, and every person deserves to be remembered as an individual, not as property. The project includes abstracts or transcripts of every will, estate inventory and deed record naming enslaved people between 1786 and 1865, as well as many other types of records.

They Had Names started as a Wordpress.com blog, then transitioned in 2018 into a full website: https://theyhadnames.net/. It was created by Stacy Ashmore Cole, a descendant of an enslaving family of Liberty County, Georgia. Cathy Tarpley Dillon served as a dedicated transcription volunteer during 2019-2022. As of 2025, it included more than 40,000 references to named African Americans, enslaved and free.

In 2025, Stacy began assembling the data into free, downloadable books and articles to ensure its availability to future generations. That project includes this ebook.

INTRODUCTION

This is a review of how estate inventories were created in Liberty County and their genealogical value. It is not intended in any way to distract from the fact that pre-Emancipation Liberty County estate inventories were horrific documents, listing living people as property and assigning them a monetary value. It is difficult to read these documents today without being overwhelmed by the human suffering they represent. The only purpose of discussing and abstracting them here is to aid their descendants in finding them and remembering that "they had names."

In the 1750s, a group several hundred European-descended South Carolina planters took advantage of Georgia's abolishment of its laws against slavery to settle in what is now Liberty County, on the Georgia coast. They brought with them an estimated 1000-1500 enslaved people of African descent, whom they used to construct and operate rice and other plantations.

Ironically, given that the majority of this area's population from that time through the Civil War was comprised of enslaved people, the area was given the name Liberty County after the American Revolution because the European-descended planters had been so enthusiastic in their support of the Revolution.

Estate inventories were required for anyone who died owning property, with or without a will. Once a property-owning individual died, his or her executor (if a will naming an executor existed) or administrator (if no will) applied to the courts for letters testamentary to enable that person to secure and administer the estate. As part of this process, the court would name individuals to appraise the property and prepare the inventory. In Liberty County, at least, these were normally property-owning neighbors of the deceased, who were likely to be able to estimate the value of the deceased's property, since it was similar to their own.

An initial estate inventory would usually be filed in the Court of Ordinary (now known as probate court) within a few months of the death. After the estate was wound up, the property left in the estate after payment of debts and bills, etc, would be divided among the heirs, whether the heirs were specified in a will or mandated according to the law if the deceased died intestate (without a will).

If all the heirs were adults, the estate would be re-inventoried and then divided among them. If there were underage heirs, the estate would be re-inventoried and divided among the adult heirs, with a portion set aside for the underage heir(s). When each underage heir reached the age of majority, the estate would be re-inventoried and divided again, with part going to the now-adult heir and a portion kept for any remaining underage heirs.

The estate would be divided into portions, or "lots," that were as equal in value as possible. In Liberty County, lot numbers were normally drawn by the heirs out of a hat. The heirs would pay each other, or be paid, if they received a lot that was under or over the average value.

Each of these inventories and divisions was documented in a court record.

Enslaved people were considered chattel property, with "chattel" referring to "movable" property, as opposed to real estate. Estate inventories normally included only chattel property, although sometimes land would be listed.

For those attempting to find their ancestors among this enslaved population, estate inventories are invaluable records. Wills usually named only the enslaved people who were the subjects of special bequests or "favor," such as manumission. Bills of sale, deeds of gift, and other such deed records might or might not have been recorded in the court system. Though those recorded deeds survive, most of the unrecorded ones do not. Estate inventories were part of a legal process and thus were always recorded.

Estate inventories sometimes just listed enslaved individuals' names and "values." Even with these minimalist documents, however, clues often stand out. Look for women's names followed by names assigned lesser values in descending order. These may be families with children listed in age order. These can only be clues in cases where the relationship was not specified, but these clues may spark other confirming research.

The 1863 estate inventory for Bartholomew Busby is an example of this. In this image, Margaret was valued at $1000. Augustus, Abram, and George followed her in the list in descending order by value. Tenah was next at $1000, followed by Joe, Peggy and Judy in descending order by value. Robin then followed at $1100. From other research, it is known that Augustus, Abram and George were Margaret's children, although this is not stated in the inventory. It is possible also that Joe, Peggy and Judy were Tenah's children. This positioning in the estate inventory is a cue for further reseseach.

Image from FamilySearch.org. Record in Liberty County -> Miscellaneous probate records 1850-1863 vol C and L > image 309 of 703.

The list of names of the enslaved people is in exactly the same order as in the original inventory. This makes it possible to look for instances of families being listed in age order.

Other estate inventories may name relationships, especially mother/child or husband/wife. (Although enslaved people were not legally permitted to marry, there were extralegal marriages recognized by the enslavers and enslaved husbands and wives would be described as such in the enslavers' probate documents.) Ages and occupations were also sometimes listed.

If an estate took years to be wound up because there were multiple underage heirs, comparing these documents across time will often indicate deaths or possible sales as people "disappear" from the records.

The estate inventories listed in this book are in date order. There are usually two dates listed: the date the appraisers took their oaths before a court official and the date the inventory was recorded in the Court of Ordinary. Only the enslaved people named in the inventory are listed, not any other "property." To find what else was listed in the inventory, see the citation at the end of each inventory. It has a link to the digitized document on FamilySearch.org. (FamilySearch.org is a genealogical website. To use it, you will need to create an account, but both the account and all the information on the website are free.)

In order to facilitate including these inventories in a database, they were created with a standardized header with field names for each piece of information commonly found within. Note especially whether an "administrator" or an "executor" were named. If an "executor" is named, the deceased left a will. The "notes" field includes any out-of-the-ordinary remarks made within the inventory.

The end of this book includes an index of the enslaver names. Why not an index of the enslaved people? Because only first names are included in the inventories, and the spelling of those names varies across inventories, devising an index for them was problematic. Fortunately, an index substitute exists. While compiling these inventories, I created a spreadsheet with the names of the enslaved people and their enslaver's name and donated it to Enslaved.org's Journal for Slavery and Data Preservation. You may found the spreadsheet here: https://dataverse.harvard.edu/dataset.xhtml?persistentId=doi:10.7910/DVN/03HR2N. This permanent link will give you the opportunity to download both the spreadsheet and a description of the data.

To use this spreadsheet as an index, open it in a spreadsheet program (like Excel) and sort it by either Column I (actual name of the enslaved person as listed in the original inventory) or Column H (a standardized version of the names to facilitate sorting). This will show you every instance of, for example, Aaron, as the name of an enslaved person. Note the names of enslavers who held individuals by that name in slavery, and look for those names in this book's index to see the estate inventories to evaluate whether this might have been your ancestor (in conjunction with other evidence, of course).

You can also search this book when viewing it on a computer by typing Ctrl-f, which will open a search bar. Enter the name you are searching for, and press Enter. Alternative spellings have been included in the records to facilitate searching.

Then came the following words, which may apply only to the five enslaved people listed above them: "The above property being pointed out to us by Mr. Dowse as the property of Mr. Francis Brown deceased, under a bill of sale found among the papers of the said Estate, and on the day on which we met to appraise the said property, Mr. Jurdine who gave the Bill of Sale to Mr. Brown, informed us that since he gave the Bill of Sale, that the Administrators to his father's Estate took the said property out of his hands legally sold it to pay his father's debts, by whom he hired the said property and that he now only holds it under a third person claim who purchased the property at the Administrator's Sale." The three appraisers were then listed again, apparently as signatories to this.]

Liberty County Estate Inventory & Division

David R. Corker - 1818-08-21

Location: Liberty County, Georgia
Deceased: Corker, David R.
Date Sworn: 1818-08-21
Appraisers: Joseph Jones, Joseph Law
Estate Administrator: not listed
Court Officer: E. Baker, Clerk
Date Recorded: 1818-08-29
Recording Official: E. Baker, C.S.C.L.C.
Total Value of Property Appraised: $6500
Value of enslaved persons: $6500
Comments: On August 21, 1818, Cornelius Williams, who signed by mark for himself and his wife, and James Corker, appointed Col. Joseph Law and Joseph Jones to settle their claims regarding a "certain deed of conveyance, made and duly executed by Francis Brown to his daughter Margaret (as of record in the Clerk's office) and also as touching a certain marriage contract, executed by David R. Corner, previous to his intermarriage with the said Margaret Brown…" Cornelius Williams and James Corker agreed to abide by the decision made by Law and Jones or forfeit a $4000 bond. The contract was witnessed by Joseph Jones and John Ashmore. John Ashmore probated the document on August 24, 1818.

Joseph Law and Joseph Jones ruled on August 21, 1818, that, although they had doubts as to the legality of the marriage contract between David R. Corker and Margaret Brown, his wife, this did not matter because "the intention of the deed & marriage contract follow the law of distribution of the state now in operation." They decreed that all of the property then in possession of Mr. Williams should be equally divided between Mrs. Margaret Williams and her son, Mr. James Corker, adding "we believe Mrs. Williams, on every occasion, acted with the best intentions, the trustee, Stephen Corker, having refused to aid her." They therefore further ruled that Mrs. Margaret Williams "shall remain in quiet possession of sd estate," and that she should not be liable for any damages. They added, "We recommend that the sd James Corker would forthwith use such means and exertions as may be best calculated to recover the two negroes carried away by Hendley, and, when recovered, we decree that they shall exclusively be the property of the sd James Corker…" John Ashmore also probated Law's and Jones' signatures to this document on August 24, 1818.

The following individuals were divided into two lots. Cornelius Williams, on behalf of his wife Margaret, drew lot #1, and James Corker drew lot #2. The document stated that unspecified land, plus stock and the current crop, were to be divided equally between the two parties at a later date.

John Ashmore probated the division on August 29, 1818.

Liberty County Estate Inventory & Division

Thomas Elliott Law - 1822-01-26

Location: Liberty County, Georgia
Deceased: Law, Thomas Elliott
Date Sworn: 1822-01-26
Appraisers: Joseph Jones, Nathl [Nathaniel] Law, Saml [Smuel] Lines
Estate Administrator: Joseph Law
Court Officer: James S. Bradwell, J.I.C.L.C.
Date Recorded: 1822-02-09
Recording Official: E. Baker, Clk
Total Value of Property Appraised: $4625
Value of enslaved persons: $4625
Comments: William Robarts, on behalf of his wife Sarah, Joseph G. Law, and Peter W. Law applied for division of this estate. Individuals below listed in lot order. Lots drawn as follows:
1 -- Joseph E. Law [as in text - appeared as E here, and as G above]
2 -- Peter W. Law
3 -- William Robarts, on behalf of his wife

This inventory was accompanied by a document dated January 4, 1819, in which appraisers Joseph Jones, Benjamin Law and Nathaniel Law were sworn before J.P. Samuel Harville, to appraise and divide the Thomas Elliott Law estate so that Alexander M. McIver could take his wife's share. McIver drew lot #2, which consisted of "eight slaves named Moses, Willoughby, Old Rachel, Gibb, Kate, Harriet, Lindy and Jacob," valued at $3650. This document was also recorded on February 9, 1822.

There was also another document, recorded the same day, in which the four heirs -- Wm. Robarts, Alexander M. McIver, Jos. E. Law [SIC], and Peter W. Law -- agreed to divide up the estate's land "at a more convenient season" and to discharge administrator Joseph Law from all claims.

Another attached document in which the heirs used the enslaved people as collateral against the estate's debts noted that Moses was not in the possession of heir Alexander M. McIver, but did not give the reason.
